

PLEASE don't weaken the no-call list. Unlike mail, radio, or TV, the telephone interrupts activities, and is typically used for personal emergencies and therefore individuals have little choice but to check calls. This type of part-time emergency system should not be taken advantage of by marketing. As an alternative to a phone marketing ban, the existing no-call list is a good compromise..